And
Marking Your Bible Workshop

With Rachel Dugger

Sister Dugger has been teaching Bible for 12 years and Ladies Classes for 3 years and has conducted classes with the church of Christ of Genesee County before. She does an excellent Ladies Class and it is a treat to have her with us.

Ladies only—join the singing, Bible Study and luncheon provided. Rachel is from Shady Valley Tennessee.

Marking Your Bible Workshop can improve your understanding of God’s Word and is an effective study tool. Come and learn the technique.

Communion with the Lord

God gave us a way to remember regularly (“the first day of the week”) and methodically (“they continued . . . in the breaking of bread”) the gracious, glorious and great death of Christ; He gave us the Lord’s Supper. It’s what Paul focuses on in 1 Corinthians 11:23-26.

A Gracious Dedication (1 Corinthians 11:25)—“This cup is the new covenant in My blood.” In partaking of the contents of the cup (i.e., fruit of the vine), we are called to remember the blood of Jesus and the new covenant (cf. Hebrews 8:6-18).

A Glorious Proclamation (1 Corinthians 11:26)—“You proclaim the Lord’s death.” The word “proclaim” is the word “preach” in other passages. When we partake of the Lord’s Supper, we proclaim (i.e., preach) a powerful sermon to the world of our faith and dedication of Christ (cf. 1 Corinthians 11:23; 4:17; Acts 20:7).

A Great Anticipation (1 Corinthians 11:26)—“You proclaim the Lord’s death till He comes.” When we partake of the Lord’s Supper, we look back to the cross of Jesus and what He did for us, but we also look ahead to the day He will return (cf. John 14:3; Acts 1:11; 1 Thessalonians 4:16).

Thank God we can remember Christ in the Lord’s Supper.

The Fool

Perhaps many Americans are unaware of the extent to which atheism and agnosticism have blanketed the country. Virtually every department in our state universities has been infiltrated by godless, humanistic presuppositions. Study and research are conducted from an evolutionary, relativistic framework that either jettisons the notion of God altogether, or dilutes it sufficiently to effectively nullify the biblical representation of deity. The psalmist anticipated all such behavior centuries ago when he wrote: “The fool has said in his heart, ‘There is no God’” (Psalm 14:1; 53:1).

Because of their inability to discern spiritual things (1 Corinthians 2:14), the Soviet cosmonauts looked out of their spacecraft in the 1960s and, in ridicule, asked, “Where is God?,” echoing again the words of the psalmist: “Why should the nations say, ‘Where now is their God?’ But our God is in heaven; He does whatever He pleases” (Psalm 115:2-3).

Pride is a deadly pitfall that blinds one to the truth: “The wicked in his proud countenance does not seek God; all his thoughts are, ‘There is no God’” (Psalm 10:4). But the Universe “declares” the plain work of the Creator (Psalm 19:1). Would we not consider a person a “fool” were he to pick up a watch and proclaim, “There is no watchmaker”? Though he had never empirically encountered the creator and designer of the watch, the mere existence of the watch proves the existence of a watchmaker.

It takes very little investigation to see that a watch is a crude, simplistic instrument compared to the glorious, complex chronometers of the Universe. Those who see “the things that are made” and deny the very One Who made it all are “without excuse” (Romans 1:20).

Recognition of the existence of the Creator should lead a person to pursue His will. One may express verbal belief in the existence of God while being a practical atheist. Such a person professes, “There is no God” by his or her actions. By failing to be devoted to God, even while considering oneself to be a Christian, he or she is denying the Lord (1 Timothy 5:8; 2 Timothy 3:5; Titus 1:16). One can deny His great act of love, mercy, and grace (Titus 2:11-12; Hebrews 2:3). One can forget and ignore the great dissolution to come (2 Peter 3:10-12).

Who desires to be a fool? Who really wants to live a foolish existence? The wise, insightful, noble person is the one who examines the evidence and draws the warranted conclusion (Acts 17:11; 1 Thessalonians 5:21). Only a fool would affirm: “There is no God.” by Dave Miller, Ph.D.
